The World's First Digitally Animated Bible & Encyclopedia Suite

Spider-Man Artist is one of the creators of iLumina!

Orlando, FL - iLumina the World's First Digitally Animated Bible and Encyclopedia, has yet another famous collaborator. Alex Saviuk, a 25-year veteran artist for Marvel and DC comics, has drawn a major section of the artwork and storyboarding for iLumina. As the artist for Spider-Man comics and syndicated newspaper series, Alex brings a new level of creativity to this groundbreaking project.

“My job with iLumina is to create a movie storyboard 2-dimensionally, on paper,” said Alex. “I have discussions with the producers about the types of camera angles we need to express the action in the movie. Using my 25 years as a comic book artist, I come up with and create the drawings, which express the action of each Bible event emotionally and physically as possible.”

“We are honored to have an artist of Alex’s caliber on the project” said Ron Beers, Senior Vice President and Publisher for Tyndale House Publishers, publisher of iLumina. “The developers of iLumina are an extremely talented and experienced group of artists, who have worked on some major projects. Alex has been an artist for Spider-Man for a long time – even before this summer’s blockbuster movie.”
